

TRANSCRIPT PREPARED BY THE CLERK OF THE LEGISLATURE
Transcriber's Office
FLOOR DEBATE

March 12, 2002 LB 707

since he was involved in oil, he was presumptively, presumptively a bad rich oil man. Now this is way before many of you, and you don't remember that this Sidney resident, this bad rich oil man decided that in furtherance of his First Amendment rights, he'd like to spend a million dollars of his money to become Governor. And there was no Campaign Finance Limitation Act to protect the people, and what would happen. There were constant headlines about his million dollars. He campaigned in his Cadillac, as I recall it from my youth. He spent his million dollars and he lost. You know one of those miracles, the people were able to do it without us. We weren't micromanaging, bureaucratizing, and technically tying them up in all kinds of our very wise, smart rules and regulations. Mr. Juelfs got to spend his million dollars. He lost the primary and the people did it without us. Isn't that...isn't that a wonderful story? Now his money was presumptively bad. The million dollars was a bad thing then. It wasn't like when Bob Kerrey wanted to spend his money, or P.J. Morgan wanted to spend his, or Ben Nelson wanted to spend his, or John Breslow wanted to spend his.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN PRESIDING

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: One minute.

SENATOR BRASHEAR: That's the first story. We'll do another one next time. Thank you.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. President, members of the Legislature, Senator Brashear told you the story. Now I'm going to tell you the rest of the story. Mr. Juelfs could not have won an election in a telephone booth if he was the only one in the telephone booth. So what Senator Brashear told us was a fable. It is something that has no relevance to what is contained in Senator Beutler's bill. When this proposal, which now is the law, that Senator Beutler is attempting to amend today, was first brought, I ridiculed it, I attacked it, I was against it. It has now become a part of the election oversight laws of the state. Senator Brashear said he is going to withdraw his